A VIBRANT DEMOCRACY MOVES ON

N.R. Mohanty

India celebrates 74th Independence Day on August 15 this year. In its vision documents, the Government of India has announced the commemoration of the 75th year of our independence on a grand scale - As a "corruption-free and poverty-free India" through inclusive and sustainable development. The run-up to that great occasion should ordain us to reflect on the significance of our country's independence for us, the Indians, and also to assess our achievements as well as failures and to discuss our way forward.

The founding fathers of our Constitution had built an ambitious template to institutionalize the non-violent creed as the core principle of our democratic existence. How successfully have we integrated that principle in our social, political and economic life is a testimony of our success as a free nation.

Mahatma Gandhi had a vision of building a pluralist, diverse and inclusive India. After more than seven decades of independence how far have we succeeded in building the foundation of the India of Gandhi's dreams is a question that confronts us. We must respond candidly if we want to make an honest assessment of our achievements in the last seven decades.

The progress that we have made since 1947 is there for everyone to see. When we became independent, there were pessimistic predictions about India surviving as one country for long. Our colonial masters were of the view that India is not a nation but is a mere geographical expression which would not stand the test of time.

The British deliberately dismembered India to make the region unstable, with a view to exercise continued suzerainty over the warring nations even after independence. In line of this prediction, Pakistan began its independent journey with an armed aggression on the Indian territories.

India underwent a searing experience with the pangs of partition, with all its manifestations of unspeakable brutality. The Pakistan question added an external dimension to India's trauma which was already wrestling with the challenge of integrating many recalcitrant princely states into the Indian Union.

The government of the independent India had a task of a tall order in salvaging the Indian nation from both the internal and external threat to its very existence. India came out of the crisis with flying colours.

There followed another set of challenges that threatened to dismember the independent India - when the linguistic and regional sentiments swept different parts of the country threatening to tear apart the national fabric. The doomsayers began the countdown to India's disintegration in the very first decade of its coming into being.

WOMEN OFFICERS IN INDIAN ARMY

Major Harsha Pandey (Retd.)

Career as an Officer in Indian Army is not only challenging and adventurous for young women but also it conditions them to be exceptional leaders capable of handling large teams at a very young age. If a girl joins Officers Training Academy immediately after her graduation, she can rise to become a Lieutenant at a very young age of even 21 years. With that starts the rigorous process of getting coached to conduct oneself as an officer and acquire not only core professional skills but also leadership and team handling skills. Seniors are much vested in the training and coaching of a youngster joining the team. Senior Officers whether from immediate unit or not, takes it as a personal responsibility to polish young officers' soft skills and teach them the ethos of the Indian Army.

It is pertinent to also discuss what women specifically can gain from joining as an officer in Indian Army. Army essentially teaches us to be independent, decisive, mentally and physically robust and encourages in to challenge, to take risk, to deliver result and above all to have your own independent identity apart from your identity of being a daughter, mother, wife or sister. Display of courage and character under extreme conditions is what you are trained to handle. Irrespective of your career choices post retirement, the lessons learnt in military go a long way in making you an extraordinary leader.

Women Officers in Indian Army were first inducted in non-medical roles in 1992 when they joined under the Women Special Entry Scheme as short service commissioned officers in various non-combatant corps. In the year 2008, first permanent commissioned women officers were inducted in Legal and Education However, Indian leadership negotiated the slippery path with tact and poise and succeeded in making them reconcile to the larger idea of India.

The unity and integrity of India was only one part of the challenges facing the Independent India. An equally daunting challenge was resurrecting the Indian Economy which had been systematically shattered by our colonial masters. One example would illustrate the point well: when the East India Company took control of the large parts of the sub-continent, India accounted for almost 23 per cent of the world income, which was equivalent to the collective income of the European countries at that time. But by the time the British left India in 1947, the Indian share in the world income had come down to less than 4 per cent.

It was indeed a Herculean task to re-build the economy from the scratch. There were two economic models in front of the leadership of the Independent India: One was the Capitalist Model followed by the Western Europe and the United States of America and the other the Socialist Model pioneered by the Soviet Union. The Western Model was supposed to represent the economic prosperity whereas the Soviet Model was regarded as a symbol of economic equity and justice.

India was a democracy like the western countries; it could not afford to adopt an economic model of a totalitarian state like the Soviet Union. But the Indian leadership was aware of the stark inequality in the standard of living of different classes of citizens in the west. It was decided to integrate the prosperity principle of competitive capitalism with the equity principle of a socialist economy. That is how began a unique experiment of what was called a 'mixed economy'.

The highlight of the 'mixed economy' model was the creation of a public sector holding the commanding heights of the economy and a private sector providing a competitive edge to the non-core sector of the economy. This synced well with the proposal of the Indian industrialists of the time who came up with what is known as the Bombay Plan that urged the Indian Government to take the reins of the Indian Economy under its command as the private sector was financially crippled to do so.

The 'mixed economy' experiment had its share of successes and failures. The public sector made huge investments in creating the basic infrastructure for an industrialized economy. The private sector ably supplemented the core sectors by focusing on production of the intermediary goods for the large industries.

But unfortunately, this model of development faced hiccups on account of what is often described as the 'License-Permit Raj'. A public sector-dominant economy created a culture of sloth, inefficiency and corruption.

The landmark liberalization process initiated in 1991 budget went a long way in mitigating the negative effects of a government-controlled economy by providing impetus to the private sector to undertake bigger responsibilities. In the last 30 years, India's private sector has grown beyond recognition; many of them have turned into big multinationals, capable of competing with the biggest and best in the industry around the world. In the process, India has created a robust economy. Last year, India became the fifth largest economy of the world in terms of the nominal GDP, edging past the United Kingdom and France.

But two concerns remain. One, India and China were at the same level of the economic development in the 1970s; India and China embarked on the same path of competitive economic experiment more or less at the same time in the 1980s but Chinese economy today is more than five times larger.

There is a second concern about the economic inequality. The stark reality is that the waves of a liberalized economy have not uplifted of all sections of the Indian society. India is still the home to the largest number of the poor who have an income below the $ 2 dollar a day - $1.90 is the World Bank's International Poverty Line - which is an internationally acceptable measure to identify the poorest of the poor. Paradoxically, India hosts a disproportionately large number of dollar billionaires (it is in the third position globally after China and the USA).

India aspires to be a USD 5 trillion economy by 2024; hopefully, the economic journey in the next four years would usher in greater prosperity for our nation and more equitable economic distribution for the largest section of our society.

The social structure in India has been historically hierarchical, epitomized by the practice of untouchability. Mahatma Gandhi made relentless efforts to integrate the so-called untouchables into the mainstream of the traditional caste system. The Indian Constitution made the practice of untouchability a criminal offence. The framers of the constitution provided for the affirmative reservation for these sections by designating them as Scheduled Castes (SC). The SC communities was provided reservation in both the national and the state legislature, in both Central and provincial jobs and in educational institutions.

There is no doubt that the SC communities have progressed visibly in the last seven decades of the Independence. But the available data suggest that the real benefits have accrued to only a small, elite families belonging to the SC community who have taken advantage of their education and economic status to corner most of the benefits. This has set off a debate if the creamy layers should be excluded from availing the provision of reservation so as to allow the percolation of the benefits to the more deserving sections within the SC community.

The Other Backward Classes, the official name given to the traditional backward castes, were brought under the ambit of the reservation system in 1990 after the implementation of the Mandal Commission Report. That brought the total reservation in jobs and educational institutions to almost 50 per cent. It has given rise to a debate if such reservations tend to compromise the quality and efficiency of the output but as this has been done to reverse the consequences of historical wrongs perpetrated by the numerically minuscule upper castes, the country has to look forward to creating a just balance between the social equity and the operational efficiency.

We are a young nation. It may appear that we have a long road to traverse to compete with the advanced democracies of the world on equal terms but with sustained effort, we would accomplish it sooner than later. We have the potential to even overtake China, our big neighbour, even though we are a multi-party democracy while China is a one-party totalitarian state. If our leadership succeeds in streamlining the corrupt and slothful bureaucratic machinery, we have the distinct possibility of emerging as the economic powerhouse of the world.

As we celebrate the 74th Independence Day, we must take the vow that we will strive to strengthen the core institutions of our democracy at all levels. There are specific responsibilities of the state and the citizens to achieve it. All governments - federal or provincial - must not allow long-term harm to the institutions and processes for short-term benefits. All citizens must eschew sectarian interests for the larger interests of the nation.

We are currently facing a deep crisis on three fronts - a decelerated economy is staring us in the face for some time; an expansionist China is forcing us to engage in an armed conflict; a once-in-a-century pandemic has made the task of reviving our economy a doubly difficult task.

But there are silver linings too. First, our foreign exchange reserves are bulging - a far cry from the days in 1990 when we had to pledge our gold to get loans from the banks in England. Second, there is a surplus of foodgrains in Food Corporation of India's godowns. Compare it with the situation in 1950s and 1960s when we had literally a ship-to-mouth existence, with the US arm-twisting us to accept its leadership, in exchange for supply of foodgrains under PL-480. Third, China had inflicted a humiliating defeat on us in the 1962 war. But we have successfully rebuffed China in the subsequent years, latest being during the current impasse in Ladakh. We have also shown Pakistan, our other hostile neighbour, its place by squarely punishing it during the 1965 and 1971 wars and by thwarting its ambitions in 1999 in the Kargil skirmishes.

All this makes us a confident nation compared to what we were decades ago. The challenge is to leverage our strengths to make India a shining example of a vibrant democracy that achieves spectacular economic success. The run-up to the momentous occasion of the 75th anniversary of our independence should inspire us to make that dream to come true.

Corps. On 17th Feb 2020, in a landmark judgement, Supreme Court of India ruled that SSC women officers in the Army are entitled to permanent commission and they have to be considered irrespective of their service length. Since then eight more Corps were brought under the ambit of permanent commission opportunities for Women Officers. As on date Corps of Signals, Intelligence Corps, Army Education Corps (AEC), Judge Advocate General (JAG), Corps of Electronic & Mechanical Engineering (EME), Army Ordnance Corps (AOC), Army Service Corps (ASC), Corps of Army Air Defence (AAD), Corps of Engineers and Corps of Military Police (CMP) are allowed to have women in permanent commission role. However as on date women are yet not allowed to serve in combat units.

Despite not being given the opportunity to serve in a combatant role, women officers have brought laurels to their fraternity and to the nation on many occasions. Lt Gen Punita Arora became the first woman in India to be both Lt. General of the Armed Forces as well as Vice Admiral in the Indian Navy. She was chosen as the Commandant of the Armed Forces Medical College in 2004. Based on need, when she migrated to the Navy, allowed by special procedure, she was accorded the rank of Vice Admiral based on her position in the army. She earned 15 or so awards and medals during her military tenure.

Priya Jhingan, commissioned in 1993, is one of the first 25 women to join the Indian Army as an officer. Alka Khurana, also commissioned in 1993, is the first woman from Indian Army to participate in Republic Day Parade and Army Day Parade in 1994. Sapper Shanti Tigga is the first female jawan (private rank) in the Indian Army who joined in 2011. Priya Semwal became the first wife of a jawan to join as an officer in the Indian Army after her husband had fallen in a counter-insurgency operation in Arunachal Pradesh in 2012.

Lt. Col Mitali Madhumita, commissioned in 2000, is the first woman officer in India to receive a gallantry award. She received the Sena Medal in 2011 for exemplary courage shown during the attack on the Indian embassy in Kabul, Afghanistan by terrorists, on 26 February 2010. Anjana Bhaduria, who joined the first-ever batch of female cadets in 1992 at the Officers Training Academy, Chennai, is the first female officer in the Indian Army to win the Gold Medal. She and Priya Jhingan were from the first batch of women officers of the Indian Army commissioned in March 1993.

Divya Ajith Kumar, commissioned in 2010, is the first female officer to receive the Sword of Honor. She led all women contingent of 154 women officers and cadets during the Republic Day Parade of 2015. Captain Swati Singh, an engineer and then only female officer in 63 Brigade of the Indian Army, is the first female officer to be deployed at Nathu La pass as Signals in-charge.

In February 2020 Lt. Gen. Madhuri Kanitkar became the third woman to become a Lieutenant General in the Indian Army. Lt Col Sophia Qureshi achieved the rare distinction of leading a training contingent of the Indian Army at Force 18, the ASEAN Plus Multinational field training exercise held in 2016. She was selected from a pool of peacekeeping trainers who were part of an exercise conducted for a week in Pune, that included India, Japan, China, Russia, United States, Korea, New Zealand and Australia.

These women have been exceptional inspiration for many others to join the forces. For women who want to learn more about how to join the Indian Army, here are some details including eligibility criteria for the various entries for women. Graduate women, who meet the eligibility criteria and age limit, can apply for joining Indian Army as Officers. The Officers' Training Academy (OTA) inducts women trainees (Lady Cadets) twice a year to undergo a 49 weeks basic military training on completion of which they are commissioned as Officers in Indian Army. The following are the four ways for women to join Indian army:

1. Graduate UPSC Entry:

Women graduate who are unmarried and are between 19 to 25 years of age can apply under this category. They need to clear the written CDSE examination which is conducted twice a year around June and November. Under this criterion, women are selected on the basis of merit list which go for training at Officers' Training Academy, Chennai.

2. Graduate Non UPSC Entry:

a) NCC Special Entry: Women who have secured a 'C' certificate with at least B grade can apply for this special entry. They need to have a minimum of 50% marks in their graduation degree. The age limit is between 19-25 years of age. Four unmarried women are selected every 6 months for training at OTA in Chennai center.

b) Judge Advocate General Entry:

Any women LLB graduate between 21-27 years of age can apply under the JAG entry. Unmarried women can apply with a minimum of 55% in LLB degree. There is no requirement for them to have attended CEE. Under this entry mode 4 women are selected every 6 months for 49 weeks of training at OTA.

3. Technical Entry for Engineering Graduate:

Women who have graduated in any of the engineering courses can apply under this criterion. Generally, there is no such requirement to have attended CEE. The age limit for women to apply under technical entries is between 20-27 years of age. Only unmarried women can apply. The minimum marks required in graduation changes every year but still it is never less than 50%. There are 20 women who are selected every 6 months for further 49 weeks training at the OTA Chennai.

4. Direct entries for women:

Indian Army also appoints women based on their skills. Such types of entries are not based upon any written exams or cut offs. It totally depends upon the requirement and availability of posts in the Indian Army. Women can be appointed in Army Medical Corps, Army Education Corps and Military Nursing Service. Even under these entries, women are required to go through the training process.

The selection process of officers in Indian Army is unbiased. Indian Army doesn't partially discriminate on the grounds of caste, colour or religion. Any woman who meets any of the above mentioned criteria and qualifies the SSB and medical test go straight for the training at Officers' Training Academy, Chennai. SSB interview is a five day selection procedure wherein candidates are assessed for 15 officer like qualities to get recommended.

Qualities are as follows: Effective Intelligence, Reasoning Ability, Organizing Ability, Power of Expression, Social Adaptability, Cooperation, Sense of Responsibility, Initiative, Self Confidence, Speed of Decision, Influencing Power, Liveliness, Determination, Courage and Stamina. These qualities can not be developed overnight hence I feel the best way to face the SSB interview is to just be yourself!

With the permanent commission being offered to Women Officers in ten different field of Army, its no longer a short term option but a full time career with prospects of unlimited professional growth in Army. With the grant of permanent commission, the Women Officers will also be able to appear for selection boards for Command appointments. For final selection, they need to be high in merit and display throughout their career a very high level of commitment, competence, professional skill sets, leadership and knowledge. Women Officers need to be focused right from the beginning of the career. Right from getting best grades in their courses to getting awards and commendations to getting known for their work, they have to work with sincerity, plan well and maintain their focus. Physical fitness as per Army standards is another important criteria they have to focus on. Managing family and professional responsibilities in tandem can sometimes become overwhelming but planning well can ensure that their career ambitions do not get impacted. The same has been illustrated already by above mentioned stalwarts. New roles and larger responsibilities await women officers in Indian Army now. Joining Indian Army as one of the finest career choices for those women who passionately want to serve their country! Its time to prove your mettle Ladies!

Jai Hind!!!
