ECONOMIC PARTICIPATION OF INDIAN WOMEN

Pankhuri Dutt

Labour force participation rate is a measure of women or men employed or seeking employment as a share of working age population. According to World Bank estimates, there were 43.83 crore Indian women in the working age group of 15-64 in 2019. Using ILO estimates of the female labour force participation rate (FLPR) in 2020, there are only 9.6 crore women who are employed or seeking work. This is almost a quarter of the male labour force participation rate. On a comparative basis, India has one of highest gender gaps among the G-20 countries and is one of the few prominent emerging economies where economic participation of women has been on a decline, particularly since 2005.

Striking rigidities in the Indian labour markets have limited the participation of Indian women in the labour force over the years. Studies suggest that demographic characteristics, educational attainment, effect of both men and women, lack of medium sized enterprises, regressive firm hiring decisions, and cross state differences in labour market regulations are some factors that have impacted the labour force participation decisions of women. An often-mentioned argument in India is the U-shaped relationship between economic participation of women and the level of economic development. A lower income level is associated with a higher participation of women in the agriculture sector, where the income effect is bolstered by the necessity of earning a living. At higher income level, women's labour force participation often falls, and is likely to improve again as gender gap in education improves. However, this increase has not been observed in India even though the education level of women has improved significantly. There are both supply and demand side stymies. Studies on the supply side show that rising house hold incomes, husbands' education, and stigma against women seeking low end jobs have had negative effects on the employment potential of Indian women. On the demand side, jobs for educated women have not grown at a rate that has been fast enough to absorb the increased labour supply. This has subsequently resulted in women withdrawing from the labour force. Another impact has been that a large share of non-agricultural workers has moved to informal sector jobs in the unorganized sector which are often not completely captured by the labour force surveys. In most informal jobs, women do not have a contract or benefits to protect their basic rights like access to a safe and secure workplace, paid leaves, maternity benefits, etc. Other challenges include de-facto restrictions on women's rights to inherit property and operational impediments like lack of access to a collateral to take loans from the formal financial sector. Studies also suggest that marriage and children have a negative effect on the economic participation of women in India.

The growth story of India is incomplete without improving the economic participation of women. Studies show that an increase in female labour force participation rate is associated with an increase in economic growth rate. This is because economic participation of women in the formal sector has a direct impact on a country's income and several multiplier

BUDGET 2021: AN INCLUSIVE & GROWTH-ORIENTED BUDGET

Interview with CEA

Prim Minister, Shri Narendra Modi has said that the Budget this year has a feel of reality and confidence of development and showcases India's self-belief. He also said that it will infuse a new confidence in the world in these difficult times. In his remarks after the Union Budget was tabled in the Lok Sabha, the Prime Minister said that the Budget carries a vision of Aatmanirbhar and inclusion of every citizen and section. Shri Modi explained that the principles behind the Budget include - expansion of new opportunities for growth; new opportunities for the youth; giving new dimension to human resource; infrastructure development and helping new sectors grow.

Budget 2021 saw a slew of big ticket announcements living up to the hopes and aspirations of millions of people of India. Employment News caught up with the Chief Economic Adviser of Government of India Dr. Krishnamurthy Subramanian for a brief interview on the provisions of the Union Budget. The interviewer is S. Rangabasham, a New Delhi based News Anchor with All India Radio.

Employment News - How realistic & achievable are the budget provisions and announcements of Budget 2021?

Chief Economic Adviser - The estimates announced in the budget are very realistic. The Budget estimates have assumed a real growth of GDP of 10.5 percent during FY 2021-22, which is a rather conservative estimate compared to the 11 per cent growth projected in the Economic Survey 2020-21 and the growth forecast of 11.5 per cent by the IMF. The Budget announcements focusing on healthcare, infrastructure spending, financial sector and reforms to enhance transparency and reduce disputes/ litigation, will be pivotal in boosting investor confidence and pushing India effects. One such example is discussed here. Because of existing cultural and social norm, Indian women are expected to be the primary care givers to children and elderly in their families, even when they are working full time. This fact is well documented through the number of hours spent on household chores. On an average, Indian women spend approximately four hours per day on household chores and in comparison, the amount of time spent by Indian men is almost 9 times less, around 25 minutes. As a result, when a woman takes up a job in the formal economy, it is often a financial decision where her wage must, at minimum, cover the cost of domestic help and caregivers that will replace her in her absence. Studies show that this phenomenon is true across countries, where women take up a job at a certain wage only if their earnings at least make up for the lost home production and associated costs, which means the female labour supply has a high elasticity to wages. This also means that a higher rate of women in the formal sector is likely to create more jobs in the care economy, which typically attracts more female workers. Moreover, studies suggest that women in India are more comfortable banking with female bankers or banking correspondents, which could in turn influence the hiring decisions of financial institutions, that are currently male dominant. Financial independence of women is also associated with higher savings and investments in the education and healthcare of children which in turn positively affects the future labour capital productivity of a country. All these positive externalities associated with increasing the labor force participation rate of women could effectively contribute towards increasing the GDP of India.

The COVID-19 pandemic exacerbated the gender inequality that existed in the country and eventually impacted the labour force participation rate of women globally. During the Great Lockdown, women across the world, including India, had to juggle household chores, were the primary care givers of children who attended schools from home, and the elderly, while doing a full-time job. Reports suggest a decline in the number of women on the payroll of companies in the months following the lockdown. In case of women entrepreneurs, majority reported an income loss during the pandemic due to the sector specific nature of their businesses. Most women owned businesses are much smaller and operate in sectors like trade, hospitality, and retail, that were severely affected due to the pandemic. However, the government's preemptive actions and policy measures soon after the lockdown helped cushion this blow. Direct benefit transfers to Jan Dhan Yojana account holders targeted almost 20 crore women. Wages under the Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Act (MNREGA) were increased from Rs. 182 per day to Rs. 202 a day. Studies suggest that the flexibility and the relatively higher wages of this program attract a lot of women workers in rural areas and is often the primary source of employment and income for them. In addition, the government provided free supplies of wheat, rice, and pulses through its public distribution system to poor households. In another instance, ASHA and Anganwadi workers, majority of whom are female, were provided insurance cover and extended additional targeted benefits like fitness benefits and conditional scholarship for their kids. These care givers worked relentlessly during the pandemic to ensure uninterrupted care and service to women in rural areas but are community workers who render their services temporarily. As a result, they typically did not have such benefits. Post pandemic, they were covered under schemes like Pradhan Mantri Jeevan Jyoti Bima Yojana and Pradhan Mantri Suraksha Bima Yojana, and their honorariums were also enhanced.

Cognizant of challenges faced by our women and with the intention to help improve their economic participation, the government made several supportive announcements in the budget for financial year 2021. An impetus to digital financial transactions through a Rs. 1500 crore dedicated corpus, and the intention to improve the digital connectivity of healthcare, financial, and agriculture sectors will have a positive impact on women. Digital access to quality healthcare and financial services can help them reduce the travel time and save them from several hassles they typically face while accessing such services through brick-and-mortar branches. For female entrepreneurs, a robust digital financial system means easier access to credit for their businesses and new and innovative ways to generate a credit score that typically should not require collaterals. As female entrepreneurs often need loans of smaller ticket size and customized structuring, a strong digital finance network can help the digital lenders cater to the demands of this segment and create better targeted products. Digital access also means better market access and reduction in information asymmetry across sectors, which could improve the productivity of their businesses. Another over-arching announcement provides for social protection of gig workers. Gig workers are formal independent contractors, who typically work for different clients on-demand and do not have a long-term employment relationship with any one company. Such a provision will not only encourage female workers to register their informal jobs to avail this benefit but will also provide a much-needed safety net that is associated with reduced risks and increased productivity. In a more targeted announcement, the margin money for availing loans under the Standup India scheme has been reduced from 25% to 15%. Women form the largest set of beneficiaries of this scheme that was introduced in 2016 to help them raise capital for their business. It was also announced that women can now work in all sectors and on night shifts with adequate safety measures in place which are covered under the Occupational Safety, Health and Working Conditions Code (Central) Rules, 2020. They cover provisions like maternity benefits, adequate transport, facilities like washroom on work premises, safety, and security etc. among others.

These policy changes are likely to have a positive impact on the female labour force participation rate. The government has taken adequate measures to support their economic participation, but a lot depends on how the private sector alters its policies also. While the pandemic blatantly revealed the gender inequalities that exist in Indian households, it also highlighted the multi-tasking abilities of women. The formal sector must realize that flexibility in time and location of work positively affects the productivity of a female employee or an entrepreneur's work. Most women could deliver quality work even during the lockdown and with additional responsibilities. This is an important take-away for corporate India from the pandemic. Robust digital connectivity, flexible work hours, a formal and trained care economy, and the option to work from home can give Indian women the much-needed opportunity to join the formal workforce. Let us hope that the new decade is a promising decade for the female labour force in India!

BUDGET 2021: AN INCLUSIVE & GROWTH-ORIENTED BUDGET

back on high growth trajectory. Given the expected multiplier effects of the infrastructure spending announced in the Budget, along with the V-shaped recovery seen across sectors, tax buoyancy target of 1.1 during 2021-22 is very achievable.

EN - Budget deficit has been pegged at 9.5% for 2020-2021 & 6.8% for 2021-22. Isn't 9.5% a huge deficit. What happens to the FRBM Act?

CEA- The expansion of fiscal deficit during the times of such an unprecedented crisis is a carefully planned decision by the Government, to give the necessary impetus to economic growth. Higher GDP growth would facilitate buoyant revenue collection and thereby enable a sustainable fiscal path in the medium term. The Budget elucidates a gradual fiscal consolidation glide path, aiming to achieve a fiscal deficit level below 4.5% of GDP by 2025-2026. Accordingly, the FRBM Act will be amended for achieving this broad path.

The enhanced fiscal deficits in the budget also reflect the resolve of the Government to lend transparency to its accounts, by clearing the subsidy arrears and accounting them in the budget. As a result, the extra-budgetary resources have been reduced to nil in BE 2021-22.

EN - 6.8% in 2021-22, does that mean that there would be a major reduction in expenditure?

CEA- The financing of fiscal deficit during 2021-22 has been planned through a fine balance between expected uptick in the revenue collection and maintaining the quality of the expenditure. The pandemic year 2020-21 saw a sharp fall in revenues, but the revenues are expected to rebound in 2021-22.

With the adoption of expansionary fiscal policy and the enhanced thrust on capital expenditure, it is expected that growth will pick up, which will yield higher revenues. This has been supported by various tax administration reform measures ranging from faceless systems to dispute settlement mechanisms, which are expected to incentivize tax compliance. In BE 2021-22, the Gross Tax Revenues are estimated to grow at 16.7 per cent over RE 2020-21 and Non tax revenues are expected to grow at 15.4 per cent over RE 2020-21. Moreover, the collection from disinvestment receipts has been pegged at Rs 1.75 lakh crore for BE 2021-22.

EN- After having undergone the global pandemic do you now think that there would be a real focus on primary, secondary & tertiary health care in the country?

CEA- Indeed, the healthcare sector has taken centre-stage due to the pandemic. The Budget recognized Health and Well being as one of the 6 crucial pillars of Atma-Nirbhar Bharat, and sharply increased its budget allocation by 137 percent in BE 2021-22. The Budget focused on a holistic approach towards health and well-being encompassing development of institutional capacities in primary, secondary, and tertiary health care via Pradhan Mantri Atmanirbhar Swasth Bharat Yojana; improving nutritional outcomes via Mission Poshan 2.0; increasing availability of clean water and sanitation via Jal Jeevan Mission (Urban) and Swachh Bharat Mission; and taking measures to reduce pollution such as the voluntary scrapping policy to phase out old and unfit vehicles.

EN- An increase of more than 34% in Capital Expenditure pegged at 5.54 lakh crores. Can we expect this to have a huge multiplier effect on the economy?

CEA- Of course. The increased budget outlays on capital expenditure in RE 2020-21 and BE 2021-22 will boost the growth in GDP both directly, and indirectly through multiplier effects on private consumption expenditure and private investment. A study by NIPFP shows that a Rs. 1 increase in capital expenditure by the Government of India crowds in private investment, and leads to an increase in output by Rs. 2.5. Moreover, economics research establishes that fiscal multipliers are higher during economic downturns. Thus, capital expenditure equivalent to 2.5 per cent of GDP, as targeted in BE 2021-22, can translate into a growth of around 6 per cent in GDP. These high multiplier effects of capital expenditure will have long term benefits for the economy by unleashing a virtuous cycle.

EN- Disinvestment target has been pegged at 1.75 lakh crores. How achievable is this. Does that mean that Govt. would live upto the adage "business of Govt. is not to be in business", atleast the non-strategic sectors?

CEA- With the expected sustained growth in the economy and the streamlined disinvestment policy laid down by the Government, this is an achievable target. It is noteworthy that the disinvestment target of Rs 1.75 crore set in the Budget for the next fiscal year, does not factor in the expected revenues from the proposed privatization of two Public Sector Banks and a General Insurance Company in the year 2021-22.

The Strategic Disinvestment Policy of the Government does emphasise that there will be bare minimum presence of the public sector enterprises in strategic sectors. The remaining CPSEs in the strategic sector will be privatised or merged or subsidiarized with other CPSEs or closed.

EN- A record allocation of 1.10 lakh crores for Railway will that translate into improved safety, electrification, track renewal etc.

CEA- Out of the 2021-22 BE outlay of Rs 1.1 lakh crore for Railways, Rs 1.07 crore has been allocated for capital expenditure in railways. This will enable development of railways infrastructure including electrification, track renewal etc. The idea is to reduce the logistics cost for our industry, and enhance passenger safety and convenience.
